Calling all Earthlings! Thousands of squishy squashy aliens have plopped, splatted and oozed their way onto our planet – and they need your help! Their name? Putty Monsters. Their aim? To get back into shape – literally, because thanks to a seriously depressing cataclysm on the Planet Flobulon, these bizarre thingummies have been reduced to shapeless blobs!

You get a pair of eyes and 70g of putty to create your Putty Monster®

Putty Monsters are blind-packed so you never know what skin/eye colour combo you are going to get. There are five different skin/eye colours (two common, two rare and one ultra rare) and you even get a cool tin to carry your creature around in, for monster-making on the move.

Squish, fold and mould 'em into suitably monstery shapes

You can still have hours of fun moulding your tactile blob into countless ridiculous shapes. 'Hmm…today I think you should have tentacles, horns and a trunk.' You get the idea.

Exclusive to Firebox, Putty Monsters are seriously addictive no matter how infantile you happen to be. Best of

Treasure Tables
The Game Mastering Blog

Active from 2005 to 2007 and dedicated entirely to system-neutral GMing advice, Treasure Tables was one of the earliest RPG blogs. It was also the precursor to Gnome Stew, so we decided the best way to keep all of its content -- over 750 articles and more than 7,500 comments -- accessible to as many GMs as possible was to move it here, which we did in 2012. Comments are turned off, just they as were when Treasure Tables closed in 2007. The GMing material and discussion archived below was originally featured on TreasureTables.org. Enjoy! -- Martin Ralya

Monster Tiles from Ocho Games

May 7, 2006 Posted by Martin Ralya (TT)

Ocho Games has come up with a nifty alternative to miniatures: 1" ceramic tiles with artwork on them.

I like the concept — simpler than minis, more durable than counters — but at $1.10 per tile, they cost as much or more than prepainted plastic D&D miniatures (which can be bought individually in all sorts of places), and a lot more than Fiery Dragon counters, which cost about 3-5 cents apiece. What do you think?

About Martin Ralya (TT)

"Martin Ralya (TT)" is two people: Martin Ralya, the administrator of and a contributor to Gnome Stew, and a time traveler from the years 2005-2007, when he published the Treasure Tables GMing blog. Treasure Tables got started in the early days of RPG blogging, and when Martin burned out trying to run it solo he shut it down, recruited a team of authors, and started Gnome Stew in its place. We moved all Treasure Tables posts and comments to Gnome Stew in 2012.

If you compare them to poker chips, the weight and feel will lend something to the game… but then again they don't have the same function as poker chips.

I'm a mini painter. I have a ton a unpainted minis just hanging out because I don't have enough time and I can't clone myself. Even though they are primer gray I still like what a mini brings to the game. I don't think I would replace my minis with tiles, but I might add tiles to the mix. Getting me to paint a zombie

Description

Why does everybody think it's OK to bother poor old Cozy Monster with their troubles and crazy questions about the meaning of life? That's what Cozy Monster would like to know. Is there an "œI was born to answer all your questions" sign on his forehead? Does he even have a forehead? Cozy Monster would love to have some answers himself! Who invented quizzes?! Who came up with taxes?! Why is it that the better the taste, the worse for you it is?! And vice versa. Perhaps you have the answer? If not, you and Cozy will get along just fine.

The TPC Blue Monster at Doral Golf Resort & Spa*, home of the World Golf Championships-Cadillac Championship, has hosted prestigious PGA TOUR events for over fifty years. In fact, virtually every great name in golf has had a moment of glorious personal triumph on this world-class track. Originally designed by Dick Wilson, golfers won't find a more challenging or spectacular golf course. At 7,125 yards from the tournament tees, and with a series of strategically placed bunkers, both length and finesse are needed to score well on this historic course. Renown golf course architect, Gil Hanse has been retained to work directly with Donald J. Trump and the PGA leadership to enhance and renovate the Blue Monster, making it one of the most famous golf courses in the world and home to a PGA event every year since its opening. Consequently, the Blue Monster features long fairways, undulating green, a deep Bermuda rough and a unique assortment of water hazards. The famous 18th hole, with its signature fountain, was ranked by GOLF Magazine as one of the Top 100 Holes in the World and by Golfweek Magazine's Best Courses You Can Play.

Mathews Archery made its way in the world as the Solocam king. Mathews introduced single-cam bows to the market and made them a huge success. The company is viewed by many as the world's top archery outfit. So, it was with great surprise that the archery industry learned there would be a dual-cam bow coming out of the Mathews factory.

To understand why Mathews would enter the two-cam market after they became a top dog through promoting single-cam technology, you have to understand Mathews' owner, Matt McPherson. While Matt has proven his skills as a businessman, he's still an inventor at heart. Matt had an idea he thought would improve on existing two-cam bow design.

Simply put, Matt said, "We felt we could raise the bar."

Matt's business sense also recognized "a certain appetite for two-cam systems" in the marketplace. So, he decided to merge his idea with a business opportunity.Twenty years ago, Matt introduced the fastest dual-cam bow on the market at the time, the Eliminator, under his McPherson bow company.

The job of generating incredible arrow

Knowing a two-cam bow did not fit in the Mathews culture, he purchased the McPherson bow name back and created the McPherson Series Monster.

Speed and Power

Generating advertised IBO speeds reaching 353 fps takes a special engine. The power for the Monster is McPherson's Advanced Vectoring System (AVS) cam. In this new system, the cables wrap around a set of special bearings on either side of the cam. The bearings are not centered on the axle, and as the archer starts into the draw cycle the bearings rise, take up string, store more energy and help the system peak quickly.

Approaching full draw, the bearings let up and place string back into the system, which allows the Monster to achieve high letoff percentages. Locking cams together with the AVS bearing synchronizes them and forces them to work together. It also

COUNCIL OF MONSTERS

The Council of Monsters Manifesto

The Council of Monsters exists for the glorification and advancement of monsters and monster culture. We will accept for membership any monster regardless of race, religion, gender, number of additional limbs or method of creation. We realize that monsters can be created by man, nature, mythology, magic, toxic spills, food additives, fires in opera houses and, in some cases, possession by evil creatures.

We do not judge the ethics of other monsters, but support them in following the laws of the places where they exist and in changing the laws where their existence is impossible. We support, financially and otherwise, the right of each monster to have its own lair and/or castle. We support laws that will allow monsters to not only marry other monsters, but also to allow them to marry hot blonde human women who fall in love with them.

We stand solidly against angry mobs with torches and pitchforks.

We still mourn the loss of Vincent Price. For Vincent Price was a man that truly understood our plight and is thus far the only human that we have allowed to sit at the table of monsters.

Approved By The Council Of Monsters

The most public part of the Council of Monsters is our seal of approval. This seal is presented on products that meet only the highest possible standards as well as positively presenting monsters and monster culture in a realistic way.

Products can be submitted for approval by leaving them in a graveyard on the night of a
