NEWS

Here's what newspapers and magazines are saying about LoggerHead Tools' products:

Newspapers

The Wall Street Journal -- December 10, 2005
 "Wrenches usually junk up tool boxes and are tough on hands. This one solves both issues and eliminates a lot of guesswork with a single hole that adjusts as you squeeze the rubber-coated handles."

Newsday -- January 19, 2006
 "Because of its wrap-around grip, it won't strip corners like conventional wrenches and pliers."

Star Telegram (Dallas/Fort Worth)/Detroit News -- February 25, 2006
 "Gimmick tools don't usually impress me. And at first glance, the new Bionic Wrench might seem like another one of those made-for-TV specials. But it is actually a solid tool that really works...The Bionic Wrench is far superior to regular pliers or an adjustable wrench – and you don't have to worry whether the nut is metric or standard-sized."

The Charlotte Observer -- March 11, 2006
 "The Bionic Wrench from LoggerHead Tools teams the versatility of an adjustable wrench with the simplicity of pliers. The wrench won't slip or round off nuts or bolts. In fact, it can often remove fasteners damaged by other wrenches."

The Wall Street Journal -- March 21, 2006
 "In two of this year's noted international design competitions, only two U.S. companies took home highest honors for their products. One, predictably, was giant Apple Computer Inc. for its sleek, high-tech iPod Nano music player. The other was a tiny unknown Illinois upstart named LoggerHead Tools LLC."

Arkansas Democrat Gazette -- April 1, 2006
 "As easy to use as a pair of pliers. Excellent gripping action of jaws means wrench won't slip off and damage bolt."

Pittsburgh Tribune-Review -- April 13, 2006
 "It's innovative, it's a fun tool, we were struck by its fresh take on the wrench," said Roy Berendsohn, senior home editor at (Popular Mechanics). "The wrench is among the most closely examined of hand tools, and you would think that, by now, everything that could be done with a wrench had been done. But this was a fresh take, the sort of tool that you pick up and say 'wow!'."

Chicago Sun-Times -- May 16, 2006
 "Think about it as (Dan) Brown did: a wrench that would

Awards

LoggerHead Tools LLC is honored to have received the following prestigious awards:

Popular Mechanics EDITOR'S CHOICE Award - in recognition of outstanding achievement in new product design

iF - International Forum Design Award, Germany

Good Design Award - an International Industrial and Graphic Design Award from the Chicago Athenaeum

Red Dot Award - Best of the Best for pioneering design in a category

Chicago Innovation Award - the year's most innovative new products and services

Patents

The United States Patent Office awarded LoggerHead Tools U.S. Patent No. 6,889,579.

not just provide a couple of pincers but would totally envelope the little nut it's attacking...Simple? Maybe. But through the years, not even giant tool makers thought of the concept."

The Denver Post -- June 11, 2006

"This Father's Day, show him you care enough to choose the scorchingly hottest gifts... Make your dad feel like The Six Million Dollar Man with a bionic wrench set from LoggerHead Tools. Not only do these handy gizmos combine wrenches and pliers, they also replace most metric wrench sizes."

Star-Telegram (Dallas/Fort Worth)/Detroit News -- July 15, 2006

"Having scored big with its Bionic Wrench, LoggerHead Tools is following up with the Bionic Grip, pliers that are based on the same design as the introductory tool. "Like its cousin, the Grip has four serrated jaw surfaces that grab a fastener head and won't let go. It is a cross between an adjustable wrench and a pair of pliers and provides the user with amazing torque."

Magazines

BusinessWeek -- October 2005

"Because it applies force only to the side surfaces, it won't strip the corners the way conventional wrenches or pliers do."

Taunton's Tool Guide 2006

"LoggerHead Tools just put itself on the map with the Bionic Wrench...It's an ingenious design."

Better Homes and Gardens Wood -- January 2006

"No more chasing down the right size open-ended or box wrench (or guessing between English or metric) with the Bionic Wrench from LoggerHead Tools."

do! Magazine -- May 2006

"Now there can be one less tool in your toolbox. Get better use out of an adjustable wrench - blend it with pliers."

Woman's World -- June 20, 2006

"Easy grip handles loosen any bolt with ease."

Network World -- June 26, 2006

"This is a wrench with a difference: It is infinitely adjustable, like your regular adjustable wrench - but far more effective. You also stand a lot less chance of stripping the skin from your knuckles, as often happens when a regular adjustable wrench loses its grip."

Boating Life -- June 2006

"This next-gen tool spoiled us. It's adjustable to 14 sizes with a simple squeeze."

This Old House -- July 2006

"This second-generation Bionic tool (Bionic Grip) has a locking grip, so you don't need Superman's strength to keep the four serrated jaws engaged as you turn."

Rainy Day (Internet Magazine) -- July 2006

"This tool (The Bionic Grip) is just the thing for every Makers' and Tinkerers' tool chest. The Bionic Wrench and the Bionic Grip are the first tools we reach for, if they work for the job, we use them...if not, then we look for something else. "How will the traditional tools compare to the Bionic Grip? We rounded up three representative tools (adjustable wrench, pliers, pipe wrench) to go head-to-head with the Bionic Grip. ...The surface contact of the traditional tools are less compared to the Bionic Grip. The larger surface contact translates directly to more torque applied to the turning or force in the grip."

Innovative Home -- Fall 2006

"The Bionic Wrench does not round off corners as do some traditional pliers and wrenches, and the product's design protects the tool from slipping off and damaging the bolt."

Manufacturing

The best designers of the red dot award: product design 2006: Daniel Brown

Well-designed tools harmonise with human motions - as does, for example, the "Bionic Wrench™" by the US-American designer Daniel Brown which received the award "red dot: best of the best". Daniel Brown opened up to us about his views on the "constancy of a good form":

"For me, "the durability of a good form" begins with the user's initial reaction to your design. Strong positive emotional experiences validate the designer's effort in creating a distinctive product that is both attention-grabbing and potentially enduring. The best designs are built upon problem-solving strategies that creatively blend innovative function with universal aesthetics. Classic examples of these designs stand the test of time. They elicit a strong emotional reaction from users and encompass a purity and simplicity of form and function that differentiate them from their competition. At the beginning of a project, opportunity and creativity unite to create a vision in the innovation process. Optimising this relationship is the creative evolutionary practice that must be mastered to exceed user expectations. When achieved, these visionary distinctions sustain themselves over time and lead to enduring emotional connections with one's audience. Ultimately, the best of these design efforts become iconic winners in the marketplace, and examples of "the durability of a good form.""

One-handed - designed logic

Well-designed tools harmonise with the movements of the human body - they correspond to the logic of the body and complement them. We use tools after all because there are certain things we cannot complete with our hands alone - unlike machines, however, tools cannot be set to operate independent of human control. The Bionic Wrench™ is a functionally designed wrench that combines a movement of the body with highly self-explanatory tool logic. As an adjustable all-around wrench for the household, it conforms and adapts to a variety of nuts and bolts that require tightening or loosening and, in doing so, prevents the corners of the bolts from shearing off - a common problem with other pliers and spanners. Moreover, this tool is well suited for removing fasteners and bolts that have already been damaged, thus solving yet another problem. When the handles of the tool are squeezed together, six hardened steel jaws converge and firmly grab a nut or bolt on all sides. In operation, the functional mechanism of the tool achieves an almost organic appearance and provides the user with a strong gripping force. Due to its innovative technology, this gripping force is effectively multiplied, allowing the tool to grip with much more surface contact area than is the case with other wrenches. The Bionic Wrench™ has been designed with a high-value appeal and clear language of form, and manages to impart a new aesthetics and functionality. The ergonomics are also an essential aspect in the design of this tool: it sits comfortably in the hand and the handles facilitate an easy, almost effortless transmission of force. Due to its design as well as the materials used, the wrench is also highly durable.

LoggerHead Tools

Winner in: 2006

LoggerHead Tools developed the Bionic Grip wrench, a new, open-ended gripping tool that combines the versatility of an adjustable wrench with the functionality of a pair of pliers. This hybrid universal tool symmetrically distributes force around the workload-distributing force over 240 degrees. The American-made Bionic Wrench has sold over 1.5 million units to date.

GOOD DESIGN™ is the world's most prestigious, recognized, and oldest Design Awards program organized annually by The Chicago Athenaeum Museum of Architecture and Design in cooperation with the European Centre for Architecture, Art, Design and Urban Studies.

GOOD DESIGN covers new consumer products designed and manufactured in Europe, Asia, Africa, and North and South America.

The trademarked awards were created in Chicago in 1950 by three architects: Eero Saarinen, Charles and Ray Eames and Edgar Kaufmann, Jr..

The distinctive black dot-shaped logo was designed the same year by the late Chicago graphic designer, Mort Goldsholl.

Hundreds of leading winning manufacturers and Fortune 500 companies print the Good Design logo for awarded their products on their packaging, marketing information, advertising, websites, corporate information, posters, billboards, and branding to the widest international consumer audience.

Entries for design and innovation, sustainability, creativity, branding, ecologically responsible design, human factors, materials, technology, graphic arts, packaging, and universal design are submitted annually by various industrial design and graphic design firms working for the Fortune 500 companies.

The most distinctive awarded global companies that have won GOOD DESIGN include: 3M Company, adidas, Apple Computer, Inc., ASSA ABLOY AB., AT&T., Arcelik A.S., Armstrong World Industries, Audi AG., Bang & Olufson a/s., B/E Aerospace, Inc., BMW AG., BODUM AG., Boeing Company, Bombardier Inc, Braun GmbH., British Airlines, BSH Home Appliances Corporation, Canal+, Chevron Corporation, City of New York, CISCO Systems, Inc., Coca Cola, Inc., Crown Equipment Corp., Daimler AG., Dassault Aviation, Dell Inc., Delta Airlines Inc., Deutsche Bank AG., Deutsche Post, Deutsche Telekom AG., Electrolux Major Appliances, Eastman Kodak, Ericsson AB., Festo AG + Co.
