iMessage Has More Than 140M Users And Has Sent Over 150B Messages, With Over 1B Messages Sent Per Day

ALEXIA TSOTSIS

Monday, June 11th, 2012

A little over a year after it's debut, Apple's Scott Forstall revealed today (<http://techcrunch.com/2012/06/11/live-from-apples-wwdc-2012-keynote/>) that Apple's SMS killer iMessage now has 140 million users, and has sent over 150 billion messages, with over 1 billion a day.

Forstall also revealed that Twitter has seen a 3x growth increase in iOS users since it's integration was announced a year ago. 10 billion tweets now from iOS 5 and 47 percent of all photos on Twitter come from iOS 5.

He also went into the fact that 84 of top 100 social apps are now pushing notifications, with 7 billion push notifications happening every single day and one 1.5 trillion push notifications in sum total.

The iMessage numbers in particular are set to growth after this latest release, as Apple revealed that iMessages on the Mac will come out of beta in Mountain Lion, and will be bolstered both on the Mac and iPad with Notifications Center.

Updating.

How to Use Google's eBookstore

Google has recently launched an online bookstore that offers over 3 million titles that can be purchased (some available for free) and stored by users on a variety of devices. Here is a step by step guide to using this resource.

Steps

- 1 Create a Google account, if you don't have one. To buy an eBook from the eBookstore, you will need to create a Google account. Payments are made using the Google Checkout feature.
- 2 Access Google eBookstore. The eBookstore can be found at books.google.com/ebooks or by navigating to "Books" from your Google account and selecting the eBookstore.
- 3 Browse eBooks. The eBookstore homepage is organized to display titles from "New arrivals," "Top rated," "best of the free," and "Books of interest" with a list of subjects located in a sidebar on the left-hand side. Click on an eBook to find information on the book, reviews from the web and users, view a sample from the book and make a purchase. You can also browse free books in the same way.

- 4 Build a library of eBooks that can be read from your web browser. Books are added to the library immediately after you purchase one or add a free one. Navigate to the "Books" category in your Google account and then select "My Library." There you will find your purchased and free books displayed with the button "Read Now" underneath. Simply click on the button to open the book. If you leave the book part-way through reading, your spot will be saved automatically for when you return to it. You can also create "bookshelves" in your library to organize your eBooks.

Build a library of eBooks that can be read from your web browser.

- 5 Access eBooks on a phone or tablet. The Google eBooks and eBookstore can be accessed on mobile devices running Android 2.1 or iOS 3.0 or later through a free application. This includes the iPhone, iPod touch, iPad, most HTC phones, Motorola Droid X and Droid 2, Samsung Galaxy A and Galaxy X among other phones. Download the app from the eBookstore itself, the Apple App store and the Android Market. The app is called "Google Books" in both the Apple App store and the Android Market. In addition to letting you purchase from your phone, the app will store an average of 16,000 eBooks on Android
